Building a Growth Driven Organization in a Volatile Economy

Chad Banman, Sandler Training of Sherwood Park, Alberta

Building a growth driven organization in a volatile economy can be accomplished. Many organizations fail to outperform the market because they have no plan, no repeatable process, and no clear vision as to how to get there. They are busy being busy and while times are good, as the saying goes "The tide floats all boats". This session is designed to examine the four key pillars of creating a growth driven organization that leverages the one key thing that makes everyone different – their PEOPLE. Focusing on skills, staff, structure and strategy the presenter will expand on what is required in each of those areas for growth to occur, even in a volatile economy.
